introduction

The field of Food Stamp Change (FSC) token and paper scrip collecting is a new one and was receiving increasing attention from collectors by the end of the 1970's. It was at this time that the first mail bid sales were published advertising the sale of limited numbers of samples from the original manufacturer's stocks. FSC items thus became openly available to the exnumia-collecting public. Tokens and scrip have been issued in practically every state of the union, most territories and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Organized information on the development and uses of FSC items is still limited. The items' main purpose was to meet federal requirements of the Food Stamp Program which at different times required that change for less than one dollar in Food Stamp eligible purchases be given in media other than U.S. currency. Tokens were used in many instances but so were paper slips or small pieces of cardboard. Some shops used neither and simply made IOU notations on the backs of cash register receipts. Denominations of tokens and slips were most commonly 1¢, 5¢, 10¢, 25¢, and 50¢ although other values exist. Plastic, metal fibre, cardboard, and paper were among the materials used with plastic and paper being the most common.

Federal regulations promulgated in December, 1978, required that U.S. currency be given for Food Stamp Change effective January 1, 1979. This was at least the second time in a decade that a shift away from the use of tokens and scrip had been made. It may well be that federal regulations will change again and tokens and scrip will come back into use. Much work remains to be done in uncovering the information needed for a complete understanding of this field.

In looking over the store names in these lists an important fact stands out. A large number of the issuing stores are or were owned or managed by many members of America's ethnic and racial minorities, and the tokens reflect it. The largest groups represented by store names are the Hispanics like Mexican-Americans, Cubans, Dominicans, and Puerto Ricans. Most issuers were small "mom and pop" or corner grocery stores. Many of their tokens have spanish-language legends especially in Puerto Rico, but also on the mainland tokens where the issuing store served spanish-speaking neighborhoods. Other store names obviously represent Negro, Chinese, Arab, Japanese, Native American, and Eskimo minorities as well as white ethnic groups.

As a mainland resident like most of the readers will be I was amazed as the variety of far-flung localities that FSC items represent. Some examples of communities represented in Alaska are Akolmuit, Chefornek, Kasigluk, Kwethluk, and Manokotak, among others. Towns like these are probably not on the tips of many of our tongues. A trading post on Little Diomed Island in the Bering Strait used tokens. That island is only two or three miles from Big Diomed Island, which is part of the U.S.S.R. Geographically these two islands are the closest together that the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R. come.

Moving farther to the south and west of the Bering Strait how many readers are familiar with towns on the island of Guam like Agana, Talofofo, Tamuning, or Yona? Try Hawaii. Stores used tokens in the following towns: Hauula, Kula, Paauilo, Wahiawa, and Wailuku. Even on the mainland Arizona indian trading posts used tokens in places like Oraibi and Tes Nos Pes. Many mainlanders have Puerto Rican friends or neighbors, but how many are familiar with Puerto Rican insular localities like Adjuntas, Aguada, Barceloneta, Bayamon, Caguas, Humacao, Ponce, or Utuado? Rather few I will venture to say. For me FSC token and scrip collecting has opened up a new range of modern American exnumia.

USES OF THIS BOOK

1. Finding and Getting Tokens: This book will tell you where to begin looking for the stores that issued tokens. It will not guarantee that you will find any, however. The tokens being sold from the mail bid lists are very few and the only way that many collectors will get tokens is either from other collectors or from the issuing stores. See Appendix B for detailed suggestions on how to proceed.
2. As A Checklist: Try collecting one token or a set of tokens from each store or each town. Most collectors seem to prefer items from one or two regions or states.
3. Write Your Own Catalog of FSC Tokens and Scrip: This listing of stores by their towns forms a logical basis for a catalog or series of local catalogs. Feel free to start using them as a basis for a new one or to add to existing ones.

SHORTCOMINGS

- a. This is not a catalog although it can be used somewhat as one. It is a list of some, not all, stores by state, territory, and town or place. As more tokens become known through mail bid lists or through collecting efforts, the lists will grow.
- b. Many of the listings may be inaccurate. They are based on mail bid sale lists and lists of other collectors, and which were in turn based on token legends. In many cases the legends themselves were incomplete, incorrectly spelled, were incorrectly listed in the first place, or even inaccurately redorded here by me! I have made some efforts to clarify a number of the town names and state locations, but because of the scope of this work it was impossible to avoid some errors.
- c. It does not list stores which issued paper scrip only, although some stores issued both tokens and scrip.

FOOD STAMP CHANGE NEWSLETTER

I have also started a nationwide newsletter published four times a year for those interested in this collecting field. It covers both tokens and scrip. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope and a free 30-word ad to me at the address below and get a free copy. Your ad will be published free of charge. Or else fill out the membership application at the back of this book and mail it to me along with the subscription fee.

FINAL NOTE

As a way of demonstrating how this list can be used to find token-issuing stores I have annotated a number of listings in California, Nevada, and Puerto Rico, areas in which I have done some "grass roots" collecting. The annotations tell the reader what my and some other collectors' experiences have been in approaching stores about their tokens. The following terms are used:

- | | | |
|---------------|---|---|
| cannot locate | - | could not find the store currently listed in the telephone book or any other directory. |
| collector has | - | I or some other collector obtained all items that remained. This may be noted sometimes as "collector has some", meaning that there may be some left. |
| dispersed | - | tokens were never brought back by the customers and the store has none remaining. |
| store gone | - | the store is out of business or has changed hands and no one knows where the tokens are. |
| thrown out | - | the tokens' issuer has destroyed or otherwise disposed of the pieces. | will not sell - the owner does not wish to sell any tokens.

If there is no notation after a store name, it means that as far as I know no one has made any contact with the owner. Good hunting!

GLOSSARY OF SPANISH WORDS APPEARING IN STORE NAMES

Because of the large number of shops which issued tokens used in Puerto Rico or mainland hispanic communities it may be of help to some non-Spanish-speaking readers to be able to know what a few words mean. As on english language token legends, spanish legends often tell collectors about the main activity of the store, and can often lead one to the location of the store in the event the location is not immediately apparent. The words listed here are mainly nouns which describe the store's major functions. Keep in mind that in Spanish as with other latin-derived languages, the adjective follows the noun. An example would be the store name "Supermercado La Victoria". English practice would show the name in translation as "The Victory Supermarket."

ALMACEN (ahl-mah-SAYNE) - plural "Almacenes." One of several words denoting a store or shop. It has a connotation of warehouse or bulk goods activities. A term used mostly in Puerto Rico for the purposes of Food Stamp Change.

BODEGA (bo-DAY-gah) - literally a cellar, in relation to stores it would imply a cellar or basement shop.

CARNICERÍA (car-nee-say-REE-ah) - a meat market or butcher shop. Used equally in mainland or Puerto Rican shops.

CASA (CAH-sah) - the usual word for "house." With a store or restaurant it gives the name a special flavor.

COLMADO (cole-MAH-though) - a strictly Puerto Rican or Spanish Caribbean word. I have not seen it in other parts of Latin America. It means a small grocery or more likely a general store. Sometimes it is used in conjunction with other words like "Supercolmado," or "Miniccolmado." One store is a "Colmado-Bar!" Another is a "Colmadito" (or little colmado).

FRIGORÍFICO (free-go-REE-fee-co) - a frozen food or cold storage shop. Most likely used in Puerto Rico.

GRANJA (GRAHN-hah) - literally means a farm, but would mean in this case a farmer's shop, or imply farm-fresh produce. Puerto Rico again.

MERCADO (mair-CAH-though) - a market. Most often written as "Supermercado", a word used both in mainland and Puerto Rican shops.

NUEVA or NUEVO (noo-WAVE-ah or noo-WAVE-oh) - new!

PANADERÍA (pah-nah-day-REE-ah) - a bakery. Used all over.

PLAZA (PLAH-sah) - in most situations it means the town square, but is often used to mean a store. A variation is "Placita", or little store.

REPOSTERÍA (ray-pohs-tay-REE-ah) - a pastry shop.

SUPER (SUE-pair) - like in SUE-pair-mahn, e.g. Supercarnicería, Supercolmado, Supermercado, etc. etc. etc.

appendix a

TIENDA (tee-EN-dah) - the most common word for store.

TORTILLERÍA (tore-tee-yair-REE-ah) - a store which sells the traditional Mexican corn flour pancakes. Tokens with this word would come from mainland Mexican-American communities.

VEGETALES (vay-hay-TALL-ace) - vegetables.

VERDURAS (vair-DCO-rahs) - also vegetables, but more like "greens".

TIPS ON FINDING AND GETTING FOOD STAMP TOKENS

Use the lists in this book to find the towns and stores in which you are interested. If you do not know where a given town is, then use a Rand McNally Commercial Atlas to find the county and location. Another locator of towns is the Webster's New Geographical Dictionary. Then check the telephone books for the addresses and telephone numbers and write them down. All of the above books should be available in your public library if you don't already own copies of them.

Make A List

Put together a list of the stores you want, then get street and road maps. On the maps circle the probable locations of the stores, and draw a route on the maps to follow the locations that seem close together. You can save gas, shoe leather, and fatigue to a considerable degree in this way.

Asking For Tokens

1. Always go in person the first time.
2. Insist on speaking with the owner or manager. Employees rarely know anything and just about 98% of all managers insist on making any token deals on their own.
3. Always carry some samples from other stores. If you can show the manager a handful from somewhere they know immediately what you are talking about. Otherwise it may take you another ten minutes to describe them before the manager knows what you are talking about.
4. In asking for what I want I am usually straightforward and neither apologetic or pushy. I always say something like:

"You used to use tokens like these for change (then I show my samples). I save these as a hobby and have been going to stores offering to buy some, or all of them if the owner wants to."

Then I wait until he or she responds. Don't overexplain. It tends to put people off.

5. Often owners do not understand you. I usually tell them that it is like collecting stamps or matchbook covers. After that they usually catch on. If they refuse to sell you any, then I cross them off my list (maybe! See below.).

If they show interest, I offer to pay them $5.00 per two hundred or any other price that I can negotiate. If there are large numbers of tokens, say over 1000 pieces, then the $5 rate can be too expensive, especially if you count in your gas, bus-fare, hours, etc.

Sometimes owners are still redeeming the tokens from customers and feel that if they sell tokens to you at a discount, you or someone else will try to redeem them at face value. In that case you may wish to ask to buy some at face value or return at a later time, often some months later. At the present most tokens have been redeemed and many merchants are only too happy to get rid of their stocks. Always be sympathetic, however, on the redemption issue and the owner will more likely be sympathetic to your interest.

6. Ask the owner if he knows of any other stores which used tokens like his. Very often other customers have brought tokens from other stores to redeem at his. You may find stores that are not on the lists in this book.
7. Frequently no tokens are available, having been thrown out or destroyed. Don't be discouraged, keep on trying.

Other Tips

1. Do not get angry at the store owner, if you are disappointed. They don't always understand, or are often busy at the time you have arrived. Tokens are usually about the last thing on their minds. Waiting patiently or returning at a convenient time will get you the tokens more often than exploding or walking out in a huff.
2. If you haven't obtained any tokens in the first two or three contacts, and the owner has not given you a definite "no", then wait four to six months before you contact him again.
3. Sometimes even when you have been told "no", make a contact about a year later. He may change his mind then.
4. Try to buy all of the tokens. In that way you often find pieces from other stores, previously unknown token types issued by the same store, varieties, errors, etc. Tokens from other stores can provide you with new leads.

Start A Small Business

1. Invariably you will end up with more pieces than you know what to do with or can even possibly trade with your correspondents. After you have obtained batches of tokens from several towns and stores (and taken out what you want for your collection), make a typed or clearly handwritten list of tokens for sale (and/or trade). A good average retail price for FSC tokens is 50¢ each. If there are more than 500 pieces per token in your lot, then charge 30¢-40¢ each. If there only 5 or less to ten pieces of each, then a good price is 75¢ to $1.50. Always keep in mind that you are including the cost of gas, time, and your effort, which is worth considerable these days.
2. Sell your overstock at wholesale (reduced prices in quantity) to larger dealers since if you have a big batch it won't pay you to keep any large amounts around. They simply will not appreciate in value like gold and silver coins. In this way you will be repaid faster for your effort, more tokens will get out to collectors, and a greater interest in the field (and therefore in any pieces which you may have set aside).
3. A cheap way to advertise is to use the free ads provided in the various tokens journals like TAMS Journal, METCA, WESTS Token Ledger, etc., and which reach large audiences.

Good Luck!
